LOCAL WHOLESALE TRADE IMPROVED THE PAST WEEK.

Traffic Conditions Now Favor Expansion of Business-Prices in General Are Unchanged.

In review of the local wholesale and jobbing trade the past week the local trade journal trade looked good. There was a goodly number of visiting buyers in, and the filled conditions of the tills bore witness to liberal purchases. Prices conditions have been so much against them. "It seems to be the opinion that spring will strike its gait within a few days, and that the volume of business will approach a 'boom' state. "The grocery trade felt the late bad weather effects less than any other line of jobbing; goods were ordered freely wherever a traveling man could reach his customers, for the people can get along without everything but their 'eats.' "Prices in general remain unchanged. Canned goods and dried fruits hold to a very liberal consumption. Fresh green goods are not cutting much figure this year as yet. rice situation is shown by the following statement from a Louisiana house to W. A. Applegate & Co.: "An account of the stock of Japan rices held by the mills of southwestern Louisiana and Texas has been made, and it discloses that there is not a sufficient quantity of the medium and better grades to fill the trade requirements of the United States at large until the arrival of the new crop in October, and, therefore, the holders are not willing to sell these goods at the prices which are offered them, and have withfrawn them from the market. We anticipate that there will not be any offerings for some

There is no cornering design in this. plain business. Anybody and everybody holding a commodity with a similar outlook before it would be very cautious about letting it go out i any quantity when a certainty of much higher prices is as apparent as in the situation of rices. A strange feature of the disturbed conditions, account of the floods, is that, notwithstanding the setback to trade in general, the collections are reported as being remarkably liberal and eighteen months' notes was deposited in New cent. until it is checked against to pay off the company's indebtedness. In commenting on this operations said:

"The rate of interest allowed the Pennsylva nia for idle working capital or what you might call 'housekeeping money,' is, I should say, about the same that all of the roads get for such accounts. As a rule, the money is deposited with trust companies and transferred to the working account in some bank as it may be needed. Theoretically I have the right to walk into any one of the places where we keep our idle capital, touch the cashier on the shoulder and say, 'Give us our balance.' But we generally know, a week or ten days ahead, when we are going to need a large amount, and while we are in no way obliged to do so we let the trust company know it. For this consideration we get a shade better interest rate. "It was not a great while ago that some well known brokerage firms offered several of the railroad companies a handsome interest rate for whatever surplus cash could be spared. The offer was never seriously considered by any of he roads, for the reason that none of the di rectors cared to assume the responsibility of passing on such collateral as grain receipts.

And it was only a short time afterwards, too, that bankers learning of the offer called and dropped the hint that, as we were receiving a fair and safe rate of interest, they did not expect us to trespass in their field, adding that if we did we would probably find in time that our knowledge of collateral was not as complete as theirs."-New York Post.

BANK PROTECTION.

Bankers who attend the world's fair at St Louis this summer will be entertained, or worcrackers, and a general assemblage of all the paraphernalia that goes to make up the outfit of those who follow the gentle art of robbery. Dismissing, as aside from the case, the quesionable policy of thus bringing prominently before the public an exhibit relating to the under world-following closely the regrettable misstep which one or more of our popular magazines and theaters have made in glorifying plain thieverythe subject is interesting in the reflection which facturers of bank equipment as an argument manufacturers themselves, in their fierce competition, often foolishly expose the weakness of their position by breaking open each other's product in public tests, with the object of showng superiority of one make as against another. The greatest suppressor of bank burglary in the United States to-day is the American Bankers' Association, with its record of relentless pursuit, capture and punishment of all crooks who prey on banks. Still, even with this protection, re reader might be considered deal, the bank burglary insurance companies seem to be doing a thriving business, and in the arge centers of population elaborate systems of local electric protective devices, leading to a common center, are maintained at heavy ex-pense, and watchmen paid by bankers are constantly on guard.-The Financier.

England Has a Deficit.

To people unfamiliar with the history and precedent of the British fiscal system, surprise has been caused by the amount of discussion over the $25,000,000 deficit in revenues for the fiscal year ending March 31. But the fact is, revenue deficits in time of peace are most unusual in English history, and are very ill received. The special reason lies in the different theory of public appropriations there and here. In the United States, one congressional committee fixes the year's appropriations and another adjusts the sources of revenue, and the cannot help itself when (as in 1892, 1893 and 1894) Congress authorizes larger expenditures than the revenue will provide for. In English theory, Parliament concedes this or that tax, asked for by the government, and the government arranges the spending. It is a modern adaptation of the old theory which drove Charles the First to ask fresh taxes from his Parliament. But a Ministry which in time of peace spends more than was originally granted it, is not popular, and has to make very plain

In the twenty years preceding the Boer war outbreak in 1899, only three were marked by deficits, those three being 1885, 1886 and 1894. The surplus ran once-in 1896-as high as $18,390,000; it fell in 1900 to a $69,000,000 deficit, and in the fiscal year ending with March, 1902, to $177,500,-000. But these were "war deficits."-New York

Quack Music Teachers. Leslie's Monthly.

"Ninety-five per cent. of all vocal teachers are quacks," said an old musician. Few singers would doubt the assertion. Probably in no other kind of work can a man who knows practically nothing about a subject do so quickly a lucrative amount of teaching. There are many common types-the piano teacher who cannot get enough pupils to make a living, the broken down, old-time singer, the derelict of the concert halls who never could sing himself, but who now gives fifty or more lessons a week at from $3 to $5 each, and many more. Their half hour lessons may be said to consist one-third of chat and gossip, one-third of scales and exercises and one-third of the singing of the pupil's favorite songs, all interspersed with just enough commendation and criticism to keep the pupil's good opinion of both herself and of her teacher. There are teachers who make their pupils sing at a brassheaded tack in the wall, and there are others whose training has not only ruined voices, but temporarily harmed general health as well. Over against these charlatans of the profession there are conscientious men and women who can detect faults in a voice and know how to correct them, who are a constant inspiration to the student's musicianship and who work carefully and enthusiastically for each individual pupil. It is not easy to tell the good teacher

Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company, which company is understood to be jointly owned by Great Northern and Northern Pacific. Union Pacific interests in the Burlington matter are generally supposed to have been more or less protected by agreements entered into previous to the formation of the Northern Securities Company. It is, however, thought by some that these agreements are hardly strong enough to There are those who believe that what may be called the legal technicality, now insisted upon by the Union Pacific people, covers something upon the liquidation of the Northern Securities The future of the Northern Pacific road, moreover, is understood to cut a considerable figure in the affair. Denials notwithstanding, it is pretty generally understood, by those who are well informed, that the Northern Securities peo-ple consider it very desirable, if, indeed, not Absolutely essential, to put the control of the Northern Pacific road beyond danger in the future. This could only be done, either by in-Union Pacific, as one of the largest stockholders in Northern Pacific, to surrender the power of partial control vested in its ownership, or by making Union Pacific one of the controlling factors. It is not likely that the former method would be practicable, under present con-ditions. While it is undoubtedly true that there is, happily, no reason to apprehend any serious conflict of views, it is also unquestionably true that differences of opinion exist which are not entirely amenable of adjustment by a mere order of the courts with respect to the manner of liquidation of the Northern Securities Company .-

There is quite a good increase to report in th of the consignments were stock that had been | ing week a year ago.

The increase in the demand was not in keep ng with the increase in supplies, consequently the conditions were favorable to buyers, and they, no doubt being anxious for the opportunity, determined early in the week to push values to a lower level. Most of the loss in values was registered the first half of the week, when salesmen were, to a great extent, handicapped by the limited demand from outside sources and consequently a lack of competition.

On Tuesday and Wednesday prices suffered an average decline of 15c, and on Thursday sales-men succeeded in holding the market steady on account of a little better competition. Subse quently, however, there was another decline of c, and at the extreme close of the week prices | @5.65; fair to choice mixed, $3.60@4.50; Westwere 20c lower than the opening of the week or the close of last week. The quality and condition of the offerings ger erally has not been unsatisfactory, but there has been rather a limited marketing of prime medium to heavy hogs. There was no relative change in values between the light and heavy grades until the close of the week, when the competition was a little the strongest for the prime heavy hogs, and consequently they developed the most strength. The range in prices, however, for all kinds continues narrow as compared with a short time ago, and at resent the spread is only about half as wide as a month to-day were not large, but there were enough o supply a Saturday demand. All buyers were not as strong as might be expected under other circumstances, and prices were possibly a trifle easier than the same grades sold yesterday. It was not generally admitted, however, that the change, considering circumstances, was sufficient to warrant a reduction in quotations. There were not enough fat steers offered to establish

The cattle trade this week was somewhat ir-demand for the choice light to medium weight steers all week, and, while prices generally were not to a great extent higher, a good, strong average was maintained at all times and the outlet was rather free. There was a very fair demand for feeding cattle early in the week, but the trading was principally with professional buyers. The request from country sources did not develop as much strength as was expected, and later in the week, with good receipts and only a fair demand, the market weakened, and at the close of the week prices were generally 10@15c lower than the opening. There has been a satisfactory market for the good cows and helfers all week and strong prices were realized up to the extreme close of the week, when it was evident that the trade had been well supplied with heifers, and final sales of this class of cattle represented a decline of about 10c in fair demand for bulls all week and steady to ferred to the National Railway Company the strong prices have been maintained. The marketing of calves was considerably larger than usual, and the result was a sharp reaction in the opening and others in many cases were probably $1.25 lower. The highest prices paid this week were $5.25 for fat steers, $4.35 for feeders, $4.75 for helfers, $4.50 for cows, $3.75 for bulls and $7 for calves.

THE SHEEP MARKET. The marketing of sheep and lambs continues quite small, the total this week being nearly 300 smaller than last week, over 1,000 smaller than than the corresponding week two years ago. Thus far this year the receipts are over 3,500 smaller

On account of the continued small receipts of sheep and lambs there has been no new developments in the trade here this week. The receipts at all times have been too small to establish a range in prices for any grade, and several days there were not enough to establish prices for all kinds. Local butchers have been unable to get enough to meet their normal requirements, and they have purchased the offerings promptly. The supply at no time was large enough to in-tion in the market and salesmen did not have an opportunity to make a test of the strength of the demand. However, it has been possible at all times to sell the small bunches offered at steady to strong prices and at the extreme close of the week there was evidently an upward tendency values. Most of the week there were no lambs here good enough to bring over $5.75, but at the extreme close choice kinds were selling as high as $5. Sheep and yearling mixed have been salable as high as $4.50 and old sheep as high as $4. There were not enough arrived to-day to establish prices for any grade, and, as usual under such circumstances, there is no quotable change or improvement to report in the market compared with vesterday. tion, it was decided to assume a position which nati, O. This attitude was brought about by the effort of the four principal railroad systems of Mexico the International and the Interoceanic Railroads -and by this means, under a single governing body, control the commercial and industrial interests of the republic. The Mexican governcompanies was considered detrimental to the market for the big heavy steers, and to consummate sales a reduction of about 10c had to be made in prices. After the middle of the week, most efficacious method of preventing consolidation. In pursuance of this policy the first steps INDIANAPOLIS, COLUMBUS & SOUTHthe majority of the voting power in the Interoceanic which was ultimately secured by the purchase of £1,000,000 of debentures, which represented 500,000 votes. This action on the part of the government effectively blocked the scheme National Railroad to obtain an outlet to the Gulf of Mexico at Vera Cruz, which it had Being folled in this respect, and urgently needing a terminus at a gulf port, the National Railroad Company now made overtures to the Mexican government to enter into a traffic arrangement for the purpose of making use of the Interoceanic Railroad. This was declined. However, as a last resort, the National proposed the sale of the control of its securities to the government, which, after consideration, was formally accepted. By these means the government placed itself in a position which enabled it to prevent present or future combinations of railway companies to control traffic.
